So the red Indian, by Ontarios side, Nursed hardy on the brindled panther! hide, As fades his warthy race, with anguish sees The white mans cottage rise beneath the trees; He leaves the shelter of his native wood, He leaves the murmur of Ohios flood, And forward rushing in indignant grief, Where never foot has trode the fallen leaf, He bends his course where twilight reigns sublime, Oer forests silent since the birth of time. Scenes of Infancy. In tracing the rise and progress of the Scottish Maroon war, we must not omit to mention that years had rolled on, and that little Harry Bertram, one of the hardiest and most lively children that ever made a sword and grenadiers cap of rushes, now approached his fifth revolving birthday. A hardihood of disposition, which early developed itself, made him already a little wanderer; he was well acquainted with every patch of lea ground and dingle around Ellangowan, and could tell in his broken language upon what baulks grew the bonniest flowers, and what copse had the ripest nuts. He repeatedly terrified his attendants by clambering about the ruins of the old castle, and had more than once made a stolen excursion as far as the gypsy hamlet. Upon these occasions he was generally brought back by Meg Merrilies, who, though she could not be prevailed upon to enter the Place of Ellangowan after her nephew had been given up to the press-gang, did...
