A senior school leader with responsibility for raising the standards of teaching and learning, KJ OHara has had the experience of being inspected over 20 times by Ofsted and Local Authorities since 2006, including under the new Ofsted Framework. During his last post, along with his colleagues, he implemented and developed a set of classroom practices that raised the percentage of teaching graded good or better from 40 to 82 in just 9 months and helped the school get out of Special Measures, under the new Ofsted Framework, in just 15 months. This book discusses the techniques in classroom teaching that were proven to raise the quality of teaching in the school in such a short time. During that time, the majority of teachers who had previously only managed to get satisfactory or not good - requires improvement in their observations moved to at least good and many of them achieved outstanding. be outstanding covers a wide range of techniques that teachers can implement to improve their teaching in order to work towards getting outstanding under the new Ofsted framework. It gives clear practical advice about what you should and should not do in observations and in your everyday teaching. Suitable for teachers in primary, secondary and post 16 education; for experienced and trainee teachers; and senior leaders with responsibility for CPD and teaching. This item ships from La Vergne, TN. Paperback.
